

Girl From The North Country trailer transcript

[Audio: various songs from Girl From The North Country by Bob Dylan throughout]

Promotional artwork appears on screen with text that reads 'The Tony award-winning Broadway show inspired by the legendary songs of Bob Dylan'. That is in a red banner across the top of the screen throughout the video. Other text reads 'Girl From The North Country' 'Duluth, Minn. 1934'. 'Written & directed by Conor McPherson.' 'Music & lyrics by Bob Dylan'. 'In cinemas'.

A clip shows a close shot of the cast moving on stage clapping in unison. Followed by a clip of a male character singing into a microphone with cast members dancing behind him. Text on screen reads 'As close as mortals come to heaven on earth, The New York Times, Critic's Pick'.

A wider shot from above shows another cast member singing into a microphone on stage. The lighting is dim. Text on screen reads 'Music and lyrics by Bob Dylan'. Another clip shows the same character from a different angle, singing and hitting a tambourine off her leg as she turns to face the cast behind her. Text on screen reads 'Profoundly Beautiful, The New York Times'.

A series of clips show the cast members dancing together, moving around stage and playing the tambourine. Text on screen reads 'Conor McPherson weaves magic with Bob Dylan's songs, The Observer'.

The next clip shows the cast looking out to the audience as they are singing. Text on screen reads 'Magnificent, Standard'.

Ten, five-star reviews then appear on screen with text underneath each set of stars. Text reads 'The Guardian'. 'The Observer'. 'Sunday Express'. 'Evening Standard'. 'Time Out'. 'New York Times'. 'The Washington Post'. 'The Independent'. 'Broadway World'. 'The Times'.

A clip then plays of two cast members on stage, one is singing and claps. Text appears on screen that reads 'In cinemas Thu 21 & Sun 24 Nov'.

Another series of clips play of the cast dancing on stage. Text on screen reads 'An Instant Classic, The Times'.

We then see a clip of a lady playing the violin followed by a close up shot of another female looking up. Text on screen reads 'Astonishing, The Guardian'.

We then see a male character on stage, stood with the other cast members. He is singing and raises his arms in the air. Text on screen reads 'Nothing less than a Broadway revelation, Chicago Tribune'.

The promotional artwork is seen on screen again. With text that reads 'Girl From The North Country' 'Duluth, Minn. 1934'. 'Written & directed by Conor McPherson.' 'Music & lyrics by Bob Dylan'. 'In cinemas'. And ten, five-star reviews with text underneath each set of stars. Text reads 'The Guardian'. 'The Observer'. 'Sunday Express'. 'Evening Standard'. 'Time Out'. 'New York Times'. 'The Washington Post'. 'The Independent'. 'Broadway World'. 'The Times'.

**ends**